

TIME OUT FOR FRESH DIALOGUE

Rethinking the playing field for corporations, people and democracy
ruleschange.org

Will you be represented at Rules Change: The DC Gathering?

Friday-Saturday, March 14-15, 2014
George Mason Univ., Arlington campus
*Convened by the GMU School of Public Policy, the Rules Change Project and the Media Stewards Project

Join an urgent, intimate discussion among leaders and ordinary citizens concerned that America's economy has to work better for communities, employees, customers, citizens and the environment -- as well as for shareholders. Are the rules of the game all serving the common good?

Are you concerned about campaign finance and election changes, taxes, wages, corporate governance, measurement and "personhood", ethics, responsible investing, environmental costs, healthy living, vibrant communities or quality education? You or your group need to be part of Rules Change-The DC Gathering.

- Who speaks for a generation of Americans facing economic uncertainty?
- Does the "voice" of money speak too loudly in Washington?
- Can American democracy survive growing income and wealth gaps?
- Are the ways we measure growth and success out of step with sustaining a healthy planet and just communities?
- How might we "map" and follow the projects and people concerned about making shareholder capitalism work better for all stakeholders?

LEARN: <http://newshare.com/rc-dc/invitation.pdf>
REGISTER: <http://ruleschangeblog.wordpress.com/conference>.
WHO'S COMING: <http://tinyurl.com/rc-dc-coming>

* With advice from the Aspen Institute's Program on Business & Society and support from the F.B. Heron Foundation.